Nebraska FISHING WATERS

NEBRASKA GAME, FORESTATION
AND PARKS COMMISSION

Second Printing

Nebraska waters are inhabited by a wide diversity of fish, including both cold and warm water species. Brown, brook and rainbow trout represent the state's cold water species while the warm variety consists of white bass, largemouth bass, smallmouth bass, rock bass, walleye, sauger, northern pike, white crappie, black crappie, perch, channel catfish, blue catfish, yellow catfish, bluegill, freshwater drum, bluegill, sunfish, pumpkinseed and bullhead.

All residents of Nebraska 16 years of age and over must purchase fishing permits to angle in the state. All non-residents, regardless of age, must possess non-resident permits to fish in Nebraska.

In an effort to provide Nebraska anglers with a reliable list of places to go fishing, Glen Foster, supervisor of fisheries, assisted the editor in preparing the following lengthy list of Nebraska fishing waters. The better waters of the state appear in bold face type and are based on recent fishing reports from those areas. Game Commission stocking reports were used to determine what species of fish predominated in the respective waters.

The state has been divided into four sections, the western part of Nebraska being section No. 1. The other sections are numbered in order according to their location in Nebraska. A carefully prepared map of each section accompanies the list.

The names of counties appearing in each section list are alphabetized. All rivers and creeks listed in the tabulation are named on the section maps while the lakes and reservoirs are found by numbers on the map. These can be identified by matching the number in the tabulation with the corresponding number on the map.
